

Scope of this Journal

The Journal of Semantics publishes articles, notes, discussions, and book reviews in the area of academic research into the semantics of natural language. It is explicitly interdisciplinary, in that it aims at an integration of philosophical, psychological, and linguistic semantics as well as semantic work done in logic, artificial intelligence, and anthropology. Contributions must be of good quality (to be judged by at least two referees) and must report original research relating to questions of comprehension and interpretation of sentences, texts, or discourse in natural language. The editors welcome not only papers that cross traditional discipline boundaries, but also more specialized contributions, provided they are accessible to and interesting for a general readership in the field of natural language semantics. Empirical relevance, sound theoretic foundation, and formal as well as methodological correctness by currently accepted academic standards are the central criteria of acceptance for publication. It is also required of contributions published in the Journal that they link up with currently relevant discussions in the field of natural language semantics.

Information for Authors

Papers for publication should be submitted to the Managing Editor by email as a PDF file or PS file attachment. If this is not feasible please contact the Managing Editor. The receipt of submissions is confirmed by email (when there is more than one author to the first author, whom we assume to deal with all correspondence, unless we are instructed differently), and the paper is reviewed by two members of the editorial board or external experts chosen by the editors. The reviewers remain anonymous. An editorial decision is normally reached within 2-3 months after submission. Papers are accepted for review only on the condition that they have neither as a whole nor in part been published elsewhere, are elsewhere under review or have been accepted for publication. In case of any doubt authors must notify the editor of the relevant circumstances at the time of submission. It is understood that authors accept the copyright conditions stated in the journal if the paper is accepted for publication.

The style requirements of the Journal of Semantics can be found at www.jos.oxfordjournals.org, under "Instructions to Authors", and are binding for the final version to be prepared by the author when the paper is accepted for publication.

L<sup>A</sup>T<sub>E</sub>X submission

Please use the Journal class file (<http://www3.oup.co.uk/semant/instauth/semant.cls>). A tex file (<http://www3.oup.co.uk/semant/instauth/guide.tex>) is available on how to use the .cls file.

Authors who are planning to send source files by email should also include a postscript or PDF version of their paper.

Please follow all the instructions to authors that are detailed above and note the text width should be set to 28pc and the text height to 41\baselineskip. Electronic figures can only be used in ps or eps format.
